Corruption of the Ballot

The grand jury of Floyd county, Ky., under the inspiring leadership of Commonwealth's Attorney W. H. May is showing what can be done to enforce the law against vote selling.

During the last three days of the recent term of court they indicted over two hundred voters. At the June term the probe will be continued if the grand jury is of the same mind as the Commonwealth's Attorney. The fine is a penalty of $50 to $100, imprisonment in the county jail from ten to 90 days, and disfranchisement. Judge Blain of Adams county agreed this movement and it is to be hoped it will sweep over the nation. Vote selling is one of the darkest crimes against liberty.

The church was handsomely decorated with flowers and evergreens and the couple stood under a bell made of flowers while the service was being said. Previous to the ceremony Miss Willie Burton Leggion sang a "Meditation of Love" in a charming manner. Miss Ruth Keene presided at the piano in a very pleasing manner, playing first "Honeysuckle" by Dvorak and "Henrietta and Flowers."

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Marcus Helm, of Danville, while the groom was supported by the arm of his best man, Mr. Blaine Drye. The two met at the altar where the ceremony was performed. Miss Martha Lewis, of Bradfordsville, was ring bearer, carrying the ring up the aisle she gave it to the minister, who, in turn, gave it to the groom, he placing it on the finger of the bride. Miss Helm wore an empire gown, of marquise over white liberty satin. Her going away gown was of grey cloth. The groom was attired in conventional black.

After the ceremony the bridal pair took a carriage to Danville, where they took the Q. & C. train for Cincinnati. After remaining in that city for several days they will return to Springfield, and go to housekeeping in the residence formerly occupied by Mr. Jacob Rose. Many handsome and useful presents were given the bride. The church was crowded with friends of both parties. The ushers were Messrs. Leslie Held, Hustonville, M. D. McCollum, J. M. Perkins and Lamont Hankins, of this place.

THE FIRST GAME

TEAM FROM SCHOOL FOR DEAF DEFEATED BY 2 TO 1 IN FAST BALL GAME

The Stanford High School baseball team got off in the lead for the season with flying colors, amassing the first game played this year on the local grounds Monday afternoon by the light score of 2 to 1 to which tune

—the same as the opener last year the nine from the Kentucky School for the Deaf at Danville went down to defeat.

The closeness of the score kept the contest interesting at all stages and although our noble athletes got off in the lead and kept their noses in front throughout the entire session, some raged misplays at critical stages, seemed likely to undo their otherwise heroic efforts.

Only the most artful twirling of Wesley Embry pulled his teammates out of several dark and dangerous looking holes.

This young slab artist performed the phenomenon of striking out a total of 17 of the opposing batsmen, and held them to only a quarter of hits. Going into this time of the year and the first game of the season, the team had speed and control and kept the visitors wondering throughout the entire contest.

JIMMY VALENTINE, WARDEN HANDLER AND ROSE LANE.

PROLOGUE.

You're not so sure about Jimmy Valentine as you might be—not until the very last chapter, when he "finds himself" in a scene that is as cleverly conceived as anything ever presented in American fiction or drama. What you are sure of as you read—very, very sure, in fact—is that you are following the story of a most interesting character, one whose doings on the stage have held the interest of many thousands. Jimmy Valentine becomes a "crook," with most of the failings and weaknesses of a man who doesn't recognize the difference between mine and thine, but he winds up as a—well, read the story and find out for yourself how he winds up. It will be worth your while, for this absorbing, thrilling romance of both the under world and the upper world as well proves that a man has never sunk so low but that he may again regain the honor he has thrust aside when the true spirit of manhood throbs within him.

(The Armstrong drama, of which the following is the novelized version, is based on O. Henry's story, "A Retrieved Reformation.")

CHAPTER I.

THE warden's office in Sing Sing prison is not a pleasant spot in which to linger, whether you may be innocent or whether guilty of a crime. And no more reasoning could be termed the abrupt, dominating personage who presided over the dismal destinies of the office and institution when occurred the events chronicled in this narrative.

That a man rated by his choice of occupation to daily associate intimately with outcasts of high and low degree and to come constantly in personal contact with all the naked and depraved going to form the life of a state's prison—that a man so rated should find complete enjoyment in accumulating these deplorable conditions is surely a contradiction of what ordinarily would be expected. Humans of normal mold are generally occupied in beautifying the evils and annoyances of their surroundings. That is man's way. Not so with Warden Handler. That which is bad can be made to be worse. Innocence can be shown to be wrong—with the aid of unkind witnesses. Reputation is always important, and if it is not it can be made so. A murderer should be made to remember always his homicide. A thief should be reminded of his amanuensis chameleons which led him into the depths of the criminal world. That was Handler's way.

And underlying all his petty oppression and gross indolence was a coarse, deep rooted, in a spirit of the old and of a race of fell brutes that went before him. Rapacity? Rapacity! Right! He had considered all that. And, if wages came to nothing but he was friendly to the state's inmates. Who then was a governor who could trust his confidence to the state's inmates when it came to a question of damages? Clearly the possibility of damages was the bane of his worries.

Handler sat at his polished oak desk in the middle of his office. At his feet was another desk used by Smith, his secretary. At his back the barred windows looked out into the prison yard, where at prescribed intervals gangs of convicts were allowed to take a brief outing to breathe in the air from the hills that mocked them, thus to prolong the lives of those who hoped to live as well as of those who hoped to die, thus to strengthen the nerves of the unfortunate whom Justice had decreed must some day at sunrise go to a shadowy lair.

Handler was growing impatient.

"Picked! Picked!" he ejaculated.

"My lock picked? The whole world is half tried it Germany, France, England and even the cleverest thieves in Naples. The whole wide world if all it has not open without they the key half."

"So I hear. Your lock can't be picked, eh?"

The inventor raised his hands in horror at the suggestion.

"Picked! Picked!" he ejaculated.

"My lock picked? The whole world is half tried it Germany, France, England and even the cleverest thieves in Naples. The whole wide world if all it has not open without they the key half."

"So I hear. Your lock can't be picked, eh?"

"It is maybe I don't understand picked you mean open mit not my key?"

"Yes, with a wire or—"

"A wire!" exclaimed the inventor.

"My lock open—that I half spend four teeth years to perfect? Now, it is laughter, yes, but—"

Handler was growing impatient.

"It will be accepted only on the condition that it cannot be opened with on a key," he pronounced.

The inventor drew himself up proudly.

"Yow, and I challenge the world," he cried confidently.

"Well, all the world's champions are in Berlin, you know," answered the warden, "and when it comes to genius in mechanics most of them are in Jull Ward have tried before now."

The visitor took his precious lock from his pocket and laid it on the table in front of the warden, saying:

"I keep the key. Now the world can not my lock open."

"It looks good," commented Handler.

"If you care to wait I'll have it tested."

"Wait! I like to see the expert frown and smile and give it up. It is my joy."

Handler went out to await the test.

George Doyle, a detective credited with a long list of important captures, entered the office and saluted Handler.

"Don't remember him," replied the old man after a searching suspicious inspection of the detective.

"You don't remember me—eh, Bill?"

Doyle laughed.

"Avery suddenly exclaimed:

"I got you now. You're Doyle—still a copper?"

"Still a copper, Bill."

"You ain't got anything on me to hold over me when I get out."

"That's true, Bill. Anyway, this time I'm your friend," said the detective in earnest manner.

Avery threw his head back.

"My friend?" he exclaimed in astonishment.

The warden could barely suppress a grin.

"Yes, I think I know where I can get you a pretty good job," went on Doyle engagingly.

"Nobody wants me," said Avery despondently.

"I think I can arrange it."

"A job in a laundry, eh?" snapped the ex-prisoner. "I've been a wash woman here."

"There are lots of jobs where you don't have to know a trade. Can't Bill sit down warden?"

"Why certain?" responded Handler.

Avery, voicing his thanks, seated himself at the warden's table.

Doyle came close to the old man.

"There's one thing you want to do, Bill, above everything else, keep out of bad company," he warned.

Avery hesitated. He glanced from the detective across to the warden.

"I'm getting out of bad company today," he replied briefly.

Doyle started forward.

"Yes, and it's a good thing you are, for you're getting away from Valentine."

"Valentine?"

"Yes," insisted Doyle. "It doesn't do you any good to know a man like that. I suppose you know he killed Cotton so he wouldn't have to divide the swing with him." The other shook his head decisively.

"I don't know anything about it."

The detective now spoke sharply.

"And what's he got against you?"

He sent out word that—"the questioner suddenly shifted—"what message did he give you to take out to—to—"

Avery drew back involuntarily.

"He didn't give me any message," he cried out in positive tones.

Then both the officials noticed that the ex-con's eyes slowly drooped and became directed to the floor.

"I could do you a good turn—if you traveled along with me," suggested the detective.

The released criminal brushed aside the invitation. He rose stiffly from his chair.

"I'm on to you, Doyle. I know that you're to be my friend. I know that you're to be a steel pigeon, eh? Well, I'm old, and I don't know where I'm going when I leave here. But I'll take the river out there," pointing over his shoulder with his thumb. "For mine before I play that game. I tell you—the old man's voice rose to an indigent pitch—"We only fly gulls like you, Doyle, that's too hay or too ignorant to do their work themselves that has to have steel pigeons on your staff to do your work for you. Why, you couldn't nab a twelve-year-old 'dip' if you didn't have some poor nerve broken rocker of a 'steel' to go on ahead and make the job easy for you."

Both Doyle and the warden, enraged at the old man, lunged violently at him to wreak vengeance upon him for his treachery.

"I don't know about Avery know," he said. "Oh, Smith," crying to his mother, "where's the Avery?"

"On your desk."

"Oh, yes. Avery here?"

"He's waiting outside."

"Let's have him."

"He's a tough old boy, this Avery," commented Doyle, "but he's my one best chance in trying to get the goods on Valentine."

The secretary brought in Bill Avery, whose gray hair, ashen face and stooping figure indicated that prison fare was not rejuvenating, although there was a strange sharpness in his eye, in his glance, that a long career of futile watchfulness had developed.

"You're finally out, eh?" greeted the prison master. "You've done nine?"

"Eight years ten months, sir."

"Treated pretty well, weren't you?"

Avery gazed intently at Smith, then he replied to his questioner:

"You've never heard me complain, have you?"

"No, and it wouldn't have got you much."

"I saw that the first day in."

"Well, now what? Going to new square?" Handler sneered as he spoke.

The released convict looked the warden squarely in the eyes.

"You know I am, sir."

Handler laughed uproariously.

"I know; they all say so. Oh, here's an old friend of yours, Avery." The speaker pointed to Doyle.

"I don't remember him," replied the old man after a searching suspicious inspection of the detective.

"You don't remember me—eh, Bill?"

Doyle laughed.

"Avery suddenly exclaimed:

"I got you now. You're Doyle—still a copper?"

"Still a copper, Bill."

"You ain't got anything on me to hold over me when I get out."

"That's true, Bill. Anyway, this time I'm your friend," said the detective in earnest manner.

Avery threw his head back.

"My friend?" he exclaimed in astonishment.

The warden could barely suppress a grin.

"Yes, I think I know where I can get you a pretty good job," went on Doyle engagingly.

"Nobody wants me," said Avery de-

spondently.

"I think I can arrange it."

"A job in a laundry, eh?" snapped the ex-prisoner.

EXCITING ENCOUNTER IN COURT ROOM AT MONTICELLO

(Homeret Republican)

A difficulty occurred between Judge J. Hartman on one side and Judge H. C. Kennedy and his brother John on the other, in the Circuit Court room at Monticello Monday afternoon.

The facts as we have heard them are about as follows: Judge Hartman and Judge Kennedy were opposing counsel in a case in Circuit Court. Judge Hartman in his argument said something which reflected on Judge Kennedy's character, and Judge Kennedy replied using language very abusive, whereupon Judge Hartman advanced toward him and was struck on the head with a water pitcher by John Kennedy and knocked down, and several blows were struck, Judge Hartman being considerably beaten up.

On account of the prominence of the parties the affair has created a deal of excitement.

Judge Hartman served a term as County Judge of Wayne county. John Kennedy was Postmaster at Monticello for several years and Judge Kennedy was County Judge of Wayne county one term and was Game Supervisor in 1910, having been reappointed for the place by Mr. Edwards.

Judge Hartman is an aged man while the Kennedys are much younger than he.

THE SOUND SLEEP OF GOOD HEALTH.

That cat is over estimated and over aluminous that pretends it is a man's to health. J. L. Southern, New Castle Wisconsin, says:

"I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pain across my back and between my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was very much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills, but after a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock, my general condition is greatly improved, and I know that Foley's Kidney Pills have cured me.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house. Shangars and Tanner.

A Little Journey

BY AN INTERIOR JOURNAL MAN ON THE HUNT FOR SUBSCRIBERS IN THE EAST END.

We left Crab Orchard last Tuesday land, still uncleared, however. The afternoon, going out on R. P. H. No. impid waters of this little stream pass over some fine gravel bars for more correctly "the rheapest and read building. Hard quartz and flint heat." Our paper was already a welcome visitor in scores of homes along the route, its coming eagerly awaited its contents carefully read by the entire family and often passed on to the neighbors for their perusal. So it was quite a surprise to meet so many old friends of the paper and still continue to find those who were not acquainted with merits, there being a goodly number of such, but who eagerly availed themselves of the opportunity to become subscribers at once when the writer explained the object of his call.

Everywhere we met with courteous treatment. The latchstring hangs on the outside and the people know to make a fellow feel at home. The first night out we spent with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harris who lives near Chappell's Gap. Mr. H. is a kind man and very agreeable. In order to make room for our horse in a good stall, he finally turned his milk cows out to a rainstorm. His wife and daughter are very attentive to the wants of the stranger.

Arriving next morning at the top of Chappell's Gap, we stopped long enough to take a survey of the beautiful panoramic view presented. Over forest and farmland intervening we had a good view of the Crab Orchard section. The Carpenter ranch can be clearly seen, almost a birdseye view. Objects in Garrard are visible to the naked eye but an inspection with a good glass would prove very interesting.

We next canvassed the German farmers in this section, found them to be very poor and it is pretty good evidence the way they take to the L. J. We very much admire their sound manners in sending their children to the Fall term of school so they will learn English while in winter the children attend a vacation school thus usually courting both languages. The little children trudging through the mud and snow, half-dressed and muddy checked present a fine picture of health. Germans in this settlement are predominant although there is an occasional Pole, Swede or French.

We arrived at Soapers in time to present at a social gathering by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson on Wednesday night. The young men of the community I can engage in an old time log rolling that day. While the girls prepared a fine dinner and supper for the occasion. Good music, lots to eat and everybody had a fine time. Spent the remainder of the evening with Mr. and Mrs. John W. Griffin. Here we met Mr. Oscar Hertel, red brother. Mr. Hertel is the leading merchant here and has a big trade.

The legendary lore of this section gives different accounts of how the name Soapers started. One account, and the most likely, says that the old ladies would join together and make soap some 40 years ago, and out of a consequence of a petty misunderstanding common at such times and places a fight resulted. Another to the effect that the old farmers would meet at a certain point to "comp their hocks" which had free run of the range, horns and nuts affording a fine mast in the early days. Others insist it is a German name, or has changed to German, and should be spelled thus. Sofus. Broughtontown near by is named for several families of the name, who live or did live there.

D. Singleton who is running a general store here as successor to Wm. Thompson, was born at Walnut Flat and is a relative of Capt. Singleton, whose last residence was Lancaster. He is an old railroad man by profession, having been employed for several years with the M. & T. R. R. in the passenger service. He was used on all the specials in preference to others, was on the Rockefeller, Amsterdam, Roosevelt and the general manager's specials, was always considered a good safe and trustworthy man. He left the service of his own accord in 1901. Since that time he was employed by Lambert and Duffy, the largest handlers of gents' furnishings in South-western Kansas. If any reference is wanted inquire of Gene Stevens, Pres't First National Bank; G. W. Hawk, Commercial Bank; C. E. Kavanagh, State Bank; eastern all of Parsons, Kan., or any other business man there. He was reared from childhood by T. S. Blankenship. Mr. John Feldman, aged 70, who met recently in the Roopers section with his son Adolf and family, from Buffalo, N. Y., was enroute to the Chicago place he ever lived in. He is considered to be in good health and rheumatism from which he was a constant sufferer has entirely disappeared. Other members of the family were suffering from various diseases in New York State but are now well. Fare well to one of the general Kentucky machine works workers. AVERTS AWFUL TRAGEDY.

Timely advice given Miss C. W. Wiloughby of Marengo, Wm. H. No. 1, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightened cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies failed, her surgeon urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. I have been using it for some time," she wrote, "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Phillips' Drug store.

A farmer of Franklin county, Maine has been giving some testimony in regard to reciprocity and trusts. He said he recently paid $15 for a plow made in the United States that could be bought in Canada for $7.50. And the plow sold in Canada at half price was exactly the same kind of plow and made by the same concern as the one he bought. He said he paid $100 for a cream separator that was being sold in Canada for about half that price. And the separator sold in Canada was exactly the same concern as the one he bought. It is strange that the people of the United States have patiently endured in discrimination made against them by the trusts so long. Everybody knows that they sell goods to the foreigner cheaper than they will to citizens of the government that gives them all their privileges.

The sale of Russell Dillon was well attended. Col. J. P. Chandler presided at the sale and the bidding was spirited. Tom Boone bought a nice pony and colt for $167. T. Nelson bought a mule at $110. Sterling Curtis bought a 4-year-old mare for $100, and P. E. Parrish also bought one at same price. Milk cows brought from $42 to $65, gows and sheats $47 to $55. Ponies and mules from $75 to $130. Everything brought a good price. Mr. Chandler tells us that the Murphy and Action sale in Kingsville was a good one. A large crowd present. Horses sold from $25 to $120, cows $65, household goods sold very high.

Parley Scott sold a 3-year-old mare to Edgar Elam for $110.

The windstorm Saturday night did considerable damage in the Crab Orchard section, in addition to blowing the large new tobacco barn of H. L. through which was covered by $1,200 insurance. It also unrooted a stock barn on Mr. A. G. Carpenter's farm, and a mill shed of H. C. Campbell of near Broughtontown. Fencing also suffered.

Henry Wells sold his farm of 41 acres near Hunter's Ford to Mack Bird for $1,000. J. T. Daniels, the Crab Orchard barber, bought Mr. Bird's house and lot for $600.

Josh Wilson sold two sows and pigs to W. R. McNeely for $60, bought a pair of yearling mule colts from H. L. Wells for $10, bought a yearling mule from Harvey Edwards for $65. He also sold a yearling mule to Mr. Cross at $92, and a cow and calf to J. Hammons at $35.

J. H. Hustle sold a bunch of 165-pound hogs to H. D. Blitzenlaw at $6, also a cow and calf to Joe Raugh for $65.

J. H. Thompson bought a nice gelding from Richard Williams for $20.

Garnet Price bought a pair of coming four-year-old mules from Mr. Nick McKenzie, of Pulaski for $25.

J. D. Eads is buying all the wool in the country paying the farmers from 16 to 20 cents according to quality.

H. D. Holtzelaw bought a Preston colt from Russ Dillon for $85 and a mare for $75.

P. E. Parrish sold a bunch of 700-pound hoppers to J. M. Cross at 5 cents.

For Sale.—Seed corn, Gold Standard yellow improved Boone county corn, $1.25 per bushel. John Cook.

Walter Menefee sold two tall cows to John DeBorde, of near Crab Orchard for $60.

Dock Grey

I sign retainer on all contracts until season is paid. Mares purchased or bred elsewhere forfeit insurance and money becomes due, to make the season at my terms.

JOHN B. FOSTER, Stanford, Ky.

A grandson of Mr. Rice Harmon shot three fingers off with a dynamite cap. Mr. D. Hopper wife and son left Sunday for Cincinnati City and other places of interest. W. T. May & Son sold to John Webb 7 fine hogs for $1.10 each per pound. They bought 8 head of cattle from R. R. Purdon for which he paid $60.
